

Story Introduction

It was a lovely café, almost cut into the cliffs. The sun was slowly sinking into the west to his right, but there were still a couple of hours until sunset.

George lent back in his chair and let the warmth of the sun dance across his face. (= 48 words)

It was a nice bungalow...